- supports more than 100 organizations here and at separate locations in a nine state area representing a host of Air Force and DOD missions.

- includes the Air Force Institute of Technology which trains thousands of students each year and the Air Force Museum which receives more than 1.5 million visitors a year.
- has some of the finest family oriented recreational programs in the Air Force.
- has a very modern commissary-base exchange complex with nearly four acres under one roof, making it one of the Air Force's largest and best.
- has approximately 850 facilities on base.
- pays out nearly $3.2 million in salaries every day of the year—a payroll of approximately $1.2 billion annually.
- has the second largest medical center in the Air Force.
- employs almost 1 of every 20 people working in the greater Dayton area.

History

The past, present and future at Wright-Patterson are all inextricably linked with the Wright brothers' legacy. The stories of the brother's early years, their bicycle shop, their printing business and their early aviation efforts are in evidence throughout the greater Dayton area.

Wright-Patterson's history as a military installation dates from World War I. Its aviation history, however, began in 1904-1905 when Wilbur and Orville Wright used an 84-acre plot of land, known as the Huffman Prairie Flying Field, for their experimental test flights. Here the Wright Brothers solved the final secrets of aerodynamics, learned to fly, and developed the first truly practical airplane—their 1905 Flyer. They returned to the Huffman Prairie Flying Field in 1910 to operate a pilot training school—The Wright Company School of Aviation—and a flight exhibition company.

When their operations ended in 1916, aviation had become a reality and a rich tradition of invention, operations, and education had been established on this sacred soil. The Huffman Prairie Flying Field was officially designated a National Historic Landmark in 1990 and became part of the newly created Dayton Aviation Heritage National Historical Park two years later.

When the United States entered World War I in 1917, three military installations were established in the Dayton area. Two of these would become part of Wright-Patterson AFB. The third was located near downtown Dayton. Their original missions—logistics, research and development, and military education—became the same mission performed at Wright-Patterson to this day.

Wilbur Wright Field and the Fairfield Aviation General Supply Depot were adjacent installations located at what is today Area C of the base. Wilbur Wright Field was located on a 2,075-acre tract of land adjacent to the Mad River that was leased to the Army by the Miami Conservancy District. The lease included the Huffman Prairie Flying Field. The Signal Corps Aviation School established at the new airfield began operations in June 1917 as a training school for pilots. The field also housed an aviation mechanic's school and a school for armorers.

The Fairfield Aviation General Supply Depot was constructed on 40 acres of land purchased by the Army from the Miami Conservancy District, immediately adjacent to Wilbur Wright Field. It provided logistics support to Wilbur Wright Field and three other Signal Corps aviation schools located in the Midwest. Each day the depot received, stored, and issued equipment and supplies to the Signal Corps aviation schools in the region.

The third World War I military installation was McCook Field. This 254-acre complex located just north of downtown Dayton between Keowee Street and the Great Miami River was named for the "Fighting McCook" family of Civil War fame who once owned part of the land. McCook Field was the temporary home of the U.S. Army Signal Corps' Airplane Engineering Division. As an engineering and research facility, McCook Field has been described as "the single most influential agency in the early years of American air power." McCook's engineers and technicians researched, developed, manufactured, tested, and evaluated military aircraft and all of their associated components and equipment.

Cooperation between the two geographically separated flying fields began in 1918 when Wilbur Wright Field agreed to let McCook Field use hangar and shop space as well as a force of enlisted mechanics to assemble and maintain airplanes and engines. Wilbur Wright Field's expansive and relatively isolated open flying field also proved ideal for testing the Air Service's experimental aircraft and the larger, more powerful models developed during the 1920s.

Following World War I, the training school at Wilbur Wright Field was discontinued. Wilbur Wright Field and the depot soon merged to form the Fairfield Air Depot. The depot remained active until 1946.

McCook Field remained in operation until 1927. The field's limited size could not accommodate the larger, more sophisticated aircraft that quickly emerged after World War I. "This Field is Small, Use It All!" was painted atop the airfield's hangars to warn pilots. When the Air Corps announced its intention to close McCook Field, local businessmen and citizens protested. The field offered a stable and expanding economic base for the community, and was also a great source of pride to the city that considered itself the birthplace of aviation.

Under the leadership of the Patterson family (who had founded the National Cash Register Company), prominent citizens formed the Dayton Air Service Committee, Inc. This organization mounted a massive public campaign that rose $425,000 in two days. It used the money to purchase 4,520.47 acres of land northeast of Dayton, including Wilbur Wright Field and the Huffman Prairie Flying Field. In 1924, the Committee presented the deeds to President Calvin Coolidge for the construction of a new aviation-engineering center. The entire acreage (including the Fairfield Air Depot) was designated Wright Field in honor of both Wright brothers.

Between 1925 and 1927, modern new facilities were built on the portion of Wright Field west of Huffman Dam to house all of the functions being relocated from old McCook Field. Orville Wright raised the flag over the new engineering center at the official dedication ceremony on October 12, 1927. The name "Wright Field" soon became synonymous with developments in the field of aeronautical engineering, a reputation that Wright-Patterson retains to the present day. This new portion of Wright Field became the headquarters of the Materiel Division, the main branch of the Army Air Corps responsible for developing advanced aircraft, equipment, and accessories. The division also procured and provided maintenance for all of these systems and was charged with managing the extensive Air Corps depot system.

Wright Field incorporated the entire installation. Many citizens in the local community, however, believed that part of the field should honor the Patterson family in some way as recognition for their leadership in keeping the engineering center in Dayton. This happened on July 1, 1931, when the portion of Wright Field east of Huffman Dam was re-designated "Patterson Field" in honor of Lt. Frank Stuart Patterson.

Frank Stuart Patterson, born in Dayton, Ohio, on November 6, 1897, was the son of Frank Jefferson Patterson and Julia Shaw Patterson. The elder Patterson and his brother, John H. Patterson, founded the National Cash Register Company and figured prominently in local Dayton history. Frank Stuart attended Yale University, but graduated "in absentia" in the spring of 1918 because he, like many of his fellow classmates, had joined the Army. He enlisted in May 1917 and was commissioned in September as a first lieutenant in the Officers Reserve Corps with the aeronautical rating of pilot. 1st Lt. Patterson was assigned to the 137th Aero Squadron as a test pilot at Wilbur Wright Field the following May. On June 19, 1918, little more than a month after his arrival, Patterson and his aerial observer, Lt. LeRoy Amos Swan, went aloft in their DH-4 to test newly installed machine gun synchronizers. They completed two trials successfully, but during a steep dive on the third test the airplane's wings collapsed and the aircraft crashed, killing both crewmen.

Patterson Field consisted of the land known today as Areas A and C of Wright-Patterson AFB. It included the Fairfield Air Depot and the Huffman Prairie Flying Field. Patterson Field soon became the Army's center for aviation logistics, maintenance, and supply. Although Wright Field and Patterson Field were now two separate installations, their missions continued to be closely intertwined.

Both fields experienced dramatic expansion during World War II, in terms of real estate as well as structures. Employment at the fields jumped from approximately 3,700 in December 1939 to nearly 50,000 in mid-1945. Wright Field grew from a modest installation with approximately 30 buildings to a 2,064-acre facility with some 300 buildings and the Air Corps' first modern paved runways. The Hilltop area, acquired from private landowners in 1943-1944, provided housing and services for the thousands of troops assigned to Wright Field. The original part of the field became saturated with office and laboratory buildings and test facilities.

The outbreak of World War II provided a crucial test for the Materiel Division, which since 1926 had managed its experimental, engineering, and procurement functions with limited peacetime appropriations. Changes were required within the Division to accommodate the massive wartime Air Corps expansion program. The functions of the Division were ultimately broken into two separate commands, the Materiel Command and the Air Service Command.

The Materiel Command, headquartered at Wright Field, was responsible for the procurement of airplanes and equipment in production quantities and for sustaining an accelerated program of testing and development. The Air Service Command, located at Patterson Field, assumed responsibility for all logistics functions, including maintenance and supply.

The separation of these functions soon proved cumbersome and confusing. The Army Air Forces addressed this problem in August 1944 when it inactivated the two commands and reunited their functions in the newly established Air Technical Service Command. This action made Wright Field subordinate to the new head-quarters at Patterson Field and had a psychologically divisive effect on the installation.

To solve the problem, the portion of Patterson Field from Huffman Dam through the Brick Quarters (including the command headquarters in Bldg. 262) was reassigned from Patterson Field to Wright Field. To avoid confusing the two areas of Wright Field, the former Patterson Field portion was designated "Area A" of Wright Field and the original field became "Area B."

Patterson Field likewise saw the growth of hundreds of barracks and their supporting mess halls, chapels, hospital facilities, club and recreational facilities. Two densely populated housing and service areas across Highway 444, Wood City and Skyway Park, were geographically separated from the central core of Patterson Field and developed almost self-sufficient community status. (Wood City was acquired in 1924 as part of the original donation of land to the government but was used primarily as just a radio range until World War II. Skyway Park was acquired in 1943.)

They supported the vast numbers of recruits who enlisted and were trained at the two fields as well as thousands of civilian laborers, especially single women recruited to work at the depot. Skyway Park was demolished after the war.

Wood City was eventually transformed into Kittyhawk Center, the base's modern commercial and recreation center.

Patterson Field and Wright Field remained separate installations throughout World War II. As the war drew to a close, base leaders quickly recognized the need to make the most efficient use of their facilities. In 1945 they integrated the master plans for both fields and increasingly administrated the functions and services of the two fields as a single installation. This practice was formalized in December 1945 with the establishment of the Army Air Forces Technical Base in Dayton, which provided base operational support to the combined bases.

On January 13, 1948, the newly created U.S. Air Force officially merged Wright and Patterson Fields to create Wright-Patterson Air Force Base. To facilitate daily management, Patterson Field became "Area C" and Skyway Park became "Area D" of the installation. Area D was donated to the State of Ohio in 1963 for the creation of Wright State University.

Today Wright-Patterson Air Force Base is arguably the most important base in the Air Force. From its beginnings as the Wright Brothers' testing field, it has evolved into the headquarters for the Air Force's worldwide logistics, procurement, systems development, and research operations. It is home to the National Air and Space Intelligence Center, the U.S. Air Force Museum, the Air Force's graduate education center, and a major medical center. Wright-Patterson's age and history coupled with its vital air power missions also make it one of the Air Force's most historically significant bases.

Today, as in the early 1900s, Wright-Patterson is where weapons systems of the future are conceived, modified, and tested until worthy of acceptance as part of the most responsive force in the history of military aviation.

The Birthplace, Home and Future of Aerospace-that's what Wright-Patterson is about. The heritage of a legendary past spurs aerospace acquisition specialists, scientists and engineers, and logisticians, educators and trainers to "keep 'm flying," faster, higher, farther and safer than man has ever flown before.

Legacy Arrival On Base

ARRIVAL ON BASE

There is one 24-hour arrival point for military personnel who are newcomers on Wright-Patterson AFB. Information will be provided concerning your sponsor and unit orderly room, temporary billeting and meals. All unaccompanied enlisted members in need of above information, and all officers and accompanied enlisted should report to the VOQ, Bldg. 825, 257-3451, using Gate 12A.

If you don't need the assistance of the 24-hour arrival point, then report directly to the unit orderly room where you are assigned. Signing in from a PCS is no longer required.

Members of Air Force Reserve components must report to the location specified on their orders.

IN-PROCESSING

YOUR CAR

All military and civilian employees, regardless of residence, permanently stationed at Wright-Patterson AFB must register their motor vehicles within 72 hours of assignment.

Civilian base employees must register their vehicles at either Pass and Registration Office, Bldg. 286, Area A, 257-6506; the Visitor's Center, Bldg. 818, Area C, 257-5308, or the Welcome Center, Bldg. 81, Area B, 255-7251.

The vehicle registration decal can either be placed on the lower left outside corner of the vehicle windshield or on the lower left corner of the front bumper of conventional four-wheel motor vehicles. The Wright-Patterson AFB installation tab is placed at the bottom of the decal.

You must have a valid state driver's license, government ID card, permanent state registration form, and compliance with the Ohio emissions testing for vehicles 2 years and older to receive a DOD decal.

There is designated parking on base. Signs and curb markings indicate parking limits. Visitors should use the parking spaces marked "visitor" or "time-limit."

If you are new to the state, you'll want to note that you can turn right on red. Drivers of motor vehicles in Ohio (and on base) may turn right when facing a steady red traffic signal, unless a sign is posted prohibiting the turn. Drivers may cautiously enter the intersection after coming to a complete stop at the red light. Drivers must yield to pedestrians in the crosswalk and to other traffic lawfully using the intersection.

Military personnel and their dependents are not required to obtain an Ohio driver's license or license plates if they are properly licensed in their home states.

Military personnel who desire Ohio license plates should take a copy of their Leave and Earnings Statement to their orderly room, as proof of legal residency in another state, and get a motor vehicle county tax exemption certificate. This certificate will save you $5 when you buy your tags. The next step is to contact the clerk of courts in the Ohio county where you live or call 879-0252 to determine where to take the car for inspection and other necessary steps to obtain an Ohio title. Once the title is transferred, you may purchase Ohio plates at various local establishments.

Civilian personnel must obtain both an Ohio driver's license and plates within 30 days after establishing residence in the state.

Associate Organizations

AIR FORCE MATERIEL COMMAND

Air Force Materiel Command Headquarters is located in Gilmore Hall, Bldg. 262, Area A. AFMC directs a highly professional and skilled work force of about 94,000 military and civilian employees worldwide. The headquarters mission is to provide the command with policies, processes and resources and to shape the workforce and infrastructure required to develop, field and sustain war-winning capabilities.

The command's emphasis on "high technology" makes it the Air Force's largest employer of scientists and engineers. AFMC employs the most Air Force civilians, about 55,000, and has 7,648 officers and 19,771 enlisted people. This work force operates major product centers, laboratories, test centers and logistics centers throughout the United States.

The AFMC mission is to deliver war-winning, expeditionary capabilities to the warfighter: war-winning technology; war-winning acquisition support; and war-winning sustainment. As the Air Force's largest command in terms of employees and funding, it manages 57 percent of the total Air Force budget.

Legacy

AFMC researches, develops, tests, acquires, delivers and logistically supports every Air Force weapon and non-weapon system. It fulfills its mission of equipping the Air Force through a series of facilities that foster "cradle-to-the-grave" oversight for aircraft, missiles and munitions. The command's three product centers, using science and technology from 10 major laboratories develop and acquire equipment such as planes and missiles.AFMC's three test centers ensure newly developed Air Force products are working appropriately and efficiently, and three air logistics centers provide service and repairs to Air Force equipment already in use. Other developmental and logistical functions are handled in the command's specialized centers. Finally, aircraft and missiles are "retired" in AFMC's Arizona desert facility, the Aerospace Maintenance and Regeneration Center at Davis-Monthan AFB near Tucson.

AFMC works closely with its customers, the operational commands, to ensure each has the most capable aircraft, missiles and support equipment possible. AFMC also provides support to other U.S. military forces and allies, and handles major aerospace responsibilities for the Department of Defense. That support includes research, development, testing and evaluation of satellites, boosters, space probes and associated systems needed to support specific NASA projects.

AERONAUTICAL SYSTEMS CENTER

within Air Force Materiel Command. The center designs, develops and delivers dominant aerospace weapon systems and capabilities for U.S. Air Force, other U.S. military, allied and coalition-partner warfighters, in support of Air Force leadership priorities.

ASC has a workforce of close to 12,000 people, located at the base and 37 units worldwide, and is managing an FY06 budget of approximately $27 billion. The center is organized into wings, groups and squadrons designed to foster synergy in the acquisition process and speed delivery of war-winning capabilities. ASC's portfolio includes capabilities in fighter/attack, longrange strike, reconnaissance, mobility, agile combat support, special operations forces, training, unmanned aircraft systems, human systems integration and installation support.

By supporting development and acquisition for these capabilities, ASC contributes to achievement of Air Force, joint, allied and coalition partner priorities. The center focuses on speed and innovation in acquisition management, as well as on rapid transition of technology into systems and business practices, development and retention of a high performance work force and formation of strong partnerships with warfighting operators in the field, industry and the local community.

Appropriately located near Dayton, Ohio, the "Birthplace of Aviation" where the Wright brothers developed the world's first airplane, ASC and its predecessors have been planning, building, testing and modifying aircraft since the days of the Army Air Corps. For nine decades this center has built one of the most responsive deterrent forces in the history of military aviation, including development of nearly every fighter, bomber, cargo, reconnaissance and trainer aircraft currently in the Air Force inventory.

To accomplish its mission, ASC's acquisition workforce is staffed with experts in areas such as program management, engineering, planning, contracting, finance, capabilities planning and integration, modeling and simulation, and training. This staff manages weapon system development and modification programs for aircraft such as the low-observable B-Spirit bomber and F-117A Nighthawk, Global Hawk and Predator unmanned aircraft systems, a new Combat Search and Rescue helicopter, F-15 and F-16 fighters, CV-22 Osprey, AC-130U gunship, MC-130 Combat Talon II, the large-capacity C-17 Globemaster III transport, C-5 and C-130 cargo aircraft, and T-6A Texan II and T-1A Jayhawk trainers. They also provide resource support for development of the Air Force's newest air dominance, low-observable fighter, the F-22A Raptor; Department of Defense's next-generation strike aircraft, the F-35 Joint Strike Fighter; and Missile Defense Agency's Airborne Laser programs.

The center also develops and acquires simulator systems; propulsion systems; equipment to resolve aging aircraft issues; and electronic systems for targeting, electronic warfare, reconnaissance and other combat functions. In addition, ASC's 311th Human Systems Wing, located at Brooks AFB, Texas, manages a variety of development and acquisition programs that focus on aircrew and ground support personnel. And its 88th Air Base Wing is the host unit at Wright-Patterson AFB.

ASC is also integrating planning and resources to provide the Air Force with capabilities for Airborne Electronic Attack, to help shut down or "blind" the enemy's electronics during war; Airborne Networking, to help give warfighters an interoperable, affordable, responsive and sustainable "network of networks" capable of satisfying Air Force, joint service, interagency and coalition/allied tactical information exchange requirements; Long Range Strike, to respond to potential future threats in the 2020 to 2030 timeframe; and Directed Energy.

Legacy.

ASC's integrators also support several other initiatives, including development of capabilities for Network Centric Operations and Collaborative Modeling and Simulation. Looking to the future, they expect even more involvement as the Global War on Terrorism continues to evolve, requiring new, transformational approaches and capabilities to maintain the U.S. combat edge.

The center maintains a historically symbiotic relationship with the Air Force Research Laboratory—whose headquarters and Wright Research Site are located here—to help set the research agenda and ensure a continuous flow of critical advanced technology for the weapon systems ASC develops and acquires.

In addition, the center operates a Major Shared Resource Center, one of four high-performance computing centers in the Department of Defense. The center is tackling large-scale problems previously beyond the reach of processing platforms and providing a vast array of services in a collaborative environment which includes government, industry and academia. ASC also has access to the Simulation and Analysis Facility, a major hub connecting developers and researchers at Wright-Patterson with others across the Air Force, DoD and industry. These two facilities allow scientists and engineers who are wrestling with future weapon system integration and operational issues the opportunity to visualize, build, test and evaluate those systems in a virtual world before actual construction is started and significant money is spent.

ASC experts concentrate on producing superior military capabilities at an affordable cost, helping the Air Force maintain its distinctive capabilities—air and space superiority, global attack, rapid global mobility, precision engagement, information superiority and agile combat support.

The capabilities they provide are part of ASC's multi-faceted support for the Global War on Terrorism. That support not only includes rapid development of urgently needed weapon systems, it also includes helping Air Force planners decide how best to train for and employ those new weapon systems. Center experts have networked training simulators for ASC-developed platforms into vast DoD war-gaming exercises, contributing a level of readiness which would have been impossible in previous decades.

In addition, the center routinely deploys troops to Iraq, Afghanistan and other locations. From troops to technologically-advanced weapon systems to training simulators—ASC provides comprehensive combat capability for U.S., allied and coalition partner warfighters.

AIR FORCE SECURITY ASSISTANCE CENTER

The Air Force Security Assistance Center, located in Bldgs. 210 and 89 in Area C, is Air Force Materiel Command's focal point for Foreign Military Sales. AFSAC implements Security Assistance directives from the President, State Department, and DOD, negotiating cases directly with over 80 countries and international organizations. The center provides materiel and services to support more than 9,000 aircraft, including 170 different models ranging from vintage fighters to modern F-15, F-16, and AWACS-767 aircraft.

MATERIEL SYSTEMS GROUP

The Materiel Systems Group is an Electronic Systems Center organization located on Wright-Patterson Air Force Base and at two air logistics centers. The MSG supports the Air Force goals for agile combat support through acquisition, sustainment and reengineering of information systems. The MSG harnesses the power of information technology for agile combat support.

BAND OF FLIGHT

The United States Air Force Band of Flight provides professional music for official military ceremonies, troop morale and esprit de corps, recruiting and community events. With a continuous record of service dating back to 1942, the 60 activeduty members of the band perform primarily within a seven-state area of the Midwest that includes almost one-quarter of the nation's population. The band's many component ensembles provide an unlimited variety of musical services designed to foster our national heritage in both military and community settings; the groups include a concert band, jazz ensemble, popular music combo, ceremonial band, Dixie band, and several chamber groups. The band's vocalists add to the versatility covering music ranging from classical to Broadway to the hottest hits from today's popular music charts.

NATIONAL MUSEUM OF THE UNITED STATES AIR FORCE

The National Museum of the United States Air Force is recognized as the world's largest and oldest military aviation museum. It is open to the public every day except Thanksgiving, Christmas Day and New Year's Day. Hours of operation are from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m., seven days a week. There is no admission or parking charge. A cafe is open for light meals.

The museum exists to inform the public of the service's mission, rich history and evolving capabilities.

Among its displays are items of historical and current significance in the field of military aviation relating to the U.S. Air Force. The museum tells an authoritative and illustrated story of flight from the Wright Brothers to the present, featuring more than 300 military aircraft and missiles. Over one million visitors annually tour this most popular, free tourist attraction in Ohio. The 500-seat IMAX Theater adds another important dimension to the story of aviation.

AIR FORCE RESEARCH LABORATORY

From ground-breaking work in turbine and rocket engines to ceramic-based body armor, the Air Force Research Laboratory (AFRL), headquartered at Wright-Patterson AFB, breaks technology barriers in its quest to defend America by unleashing the power of innovative science and technology.

The Lab was formed in October 1997 by the merger of four former Air Force laboratories and the Air Force Office of Scientific Research. Its mission is to lead the discovery, development, and integration of affordable warfighting technologies for our air and space forces. As a full-spectrum laboratory, AFRL is responsible for planning and executing the Air Force's entire science and technology budget of $1.5 billion with an additional $1.8 billion from AFRL customers.

The Lab and its predecessors have overseen more than 80 years of critical research efforts for the Air Force and the Department of Defense. Its technology breakthroughs can be found in all of today's modern aircraft and weapon systems, including the F-117A Nighthawk, B-2 Spirit, C-17 Globemaster III, and the F/A-22 Raptor. The Lab has contributed to significant advancements in modern communications, electronics, manufacturing, and medical research and products.

AFRL is organized along nine technology disciplines, plus an office for managing national and international basic research. Each discipline is assigned to a single directorate, which has the responsibility to perform, procure, and synthesize basic research, exploratory technology development, and advanced technology development in that research area. Wright-Patterson AFB has six directorates represented, five of which are headquarted here and one that has a subordinate unit here.

The Air Vehicles Directorate, head-quartered at Wright-Patterson AFB, develops and transitions superior technology solutions that enable dominant military aerospace vehicles. Core technology areas include aeronautical sciences, control sciences, structures, and integration. The directorate employs an integrated concept approach for the development of vehicle technologies to provide future capabilities in the areas of aircraft capability enhancement, unmanned air vehicles, space access, and future strike.

The Human Effectiveness Directorate is headquartered at Wright-Patterson AFB with additional research facilities at Brooks City-Base, Texas; Mesa, Arizona; and Edgewood, Maryland. The directorate develops, integrates, and transitions science and technologies for training personnel, improving the interface between the warrior and the weapon system and protecting and sustaining warfighters to assure the preeminence of U.S. forces. The directorate has eight core technology areas: warfighter skill development and training, training simulation, information display and decision support, crew system design technologies, directed energy bioeffects, toxic hazards effects, crew protection, and logistician effectiveness.

The Information Directorate, with facilities at Wright-Patterson AFB but headquartered at Rome Research Site, N.Y., develops information technologies for aerospace command and control and its transition to air, space, and ground systems. Its focus areas include a broad spectrum of technologies including information fusion and exploitation, communications and networking, collaborative environments, modeling and simulation, defensive information warfare, and intelligent information systems. Directorate scientists and engineers develop systems, concepts, and technologies to enhance the Air Force's capability to successfully meet the challenges of the information age.

The Materials and Manufacturing Directorate, headquartered at Wright-Patterson AFB, with an additional research facility at Tyndall AFB, Fla., develops materials, processes, and advanced manufacturing technologies for aircraft, spacecraft, missiles, rockets, and ground-based systems and their structural, electronic, and optical components. The Air Force relies on the directorate's expertise in metallic and nonmetallic structural materials, nondestructive inspection, materials used in aerospace propulsion systems, sensor materials, laser-hardened materials, systems support, and advanced manufacturing methods to solve system, expeditionary deployment, and operational challenges.

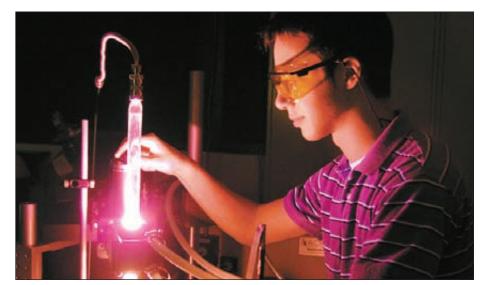

The Propulsion Directorate, head-quartered at Wright-Patterson AFB with an additional research facility at Edwards AFB, Calif., develops air and space vehicle propulsion and power technologies. Focus areas include turbine and rocket engines, advanced propulsion systems, and the associated fuels and propellants for all propulsion systems. The directorate is also responsible for most forms of power technology, making it one of the nation's leaders in its field.

The Sensors Directorate, headquartered at Wright-Patterson AFB with additional research facilities at Hanscom AFB, Mass., and Rome, N.Y., develops sensors for air and space reconnaissance, surveillance, precision engagement, and electronic warfare systems. The directorate's vision is to provide a full range of air and space sensors which are networked to the warfighter, providing a complete and timely picture of the battlespace, enabling precision targeting of the enemy and protection of friendly air and space assets.

Directorates not located at Wright-Patterson AFB include Space Vehicles, Directed Energy, and Munitions.

THE AIR FORCE INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

AFIT is the Air Force's graduate school for engineering and management as well as its institution for continuing education. A component of Air University, AFIT is committed to providing defense-focused graduate and continuing education and research to sustain the technological supremacy of America's air and space forces.

AFIT accomplishes its primary mission through the Graduate School of Engineering and Management by offering resident graduate degree and certificate programs in engineering, applied science, and management. The Graduate School also offers short courses and certificate programs through seminars and distance learning. Two other organizations in AFIT, the School of Systems and Logistics and the Civil Engineer and Services School, provide the Air Force corporate training and continuing education opportunities. Since resident degrees were first granted in 1956, over 15,000 master's degree and 300 doctor of philosophy degrees have been awarded.

The Graduate School of Engineering and Management offers the following programs which lead to either a doctor of philosophy or a master's degree: aeronautical engineering, applied mathematics, applied physics, astronautical engineering, computer engineering, computer systems, electrical engineering, electro-optics, materials science, nuclear engineering, and operations research. The graduate school also offers master's degree programs in cost analysis, engineering management, environmental engineering and science, information assurance, information resource management, logistics management, research and development management, space systems, and systems engineering. In addition, AFIT is the preferred provider of technical and management education for individuals selected for Intermediate Developmental Education and Senior Developmental Education.

Students at the Graduate School of Engineering and Management conduct a wide range of high-quality research directly contributing to current military projects and issues. Recent efforts include development of an autopilot for autonomous refueling applications, hyperspectral imaging enhancements, new techniques for identification of special nuclear material, modeling of clandestine networks, high energy laser end-to-end operational simulation, and network security. Most AFIT research efforts are sponsored by the Air Force Research Laboratory (including the Air Force Office of Scientific Research) or other USAF, DoD, or defense-related agencies. Additional details are available at http://www.afit.edu/en/enr/ Overview.html.

Legacy

The School of Systems and Logistics is the Air Force's sole provider of professional continuing education courses in the areas of acquisition, logistics, and software engineering. With over 80 courses, the school plans, develops, and conducts courses and programs to satisfy the technical management educational needs of logistics, systems, and acquisition customers from the Air Force, Department of Defense, and other federal agencies. More than 15,000 students receive education from the School of Systems and Logistics each year. The school currently offers Air Force courses ranging in length from 3 days to 3 weeks in the broad disciplines of acquisition, sustainment, and engineering management. It is also the leader in Web-based education for the acquisition and logistics workforce, hosting over 40 on-line courses that provide the tools, skills, and abilities to manage the entire spectrum of a systems life cycle.

The Civil Engineer and Services School provides professional continuing education in engineering, environmental, and management subjects for military officers and civilians in the civil engineering and services career fields. The school offers more than 50 courses delivered in-residence and by on-site seminars, as well as through videotape and satellite presentations. It also provides extensive consultation services. More than 5,000 students worldwide receive education from the Civil Engineer and Services School annually.

Some of the most accomplished engineers and scientists in Air Force history are AFIT alumni. Air Force pioneers General George Kenney, General Jimmy Doolittle, and General Bernard Schriever attended AFIT programs prior to the time degrees were conferred. General Lawrence Skantze, who culminated his career as the commander of Air Force Systems Command, was one of the early degree graduates. Major General

William Anders and fellow astronaut Colonel Guion Bluford also attained graduate degrees at AFIT.

The effects of AFIT's educational programs pervade the Air Force and Department of Defense. Graduates are assigned to a wide range of positions in a rapidly changing technological environment. They become both practicing engineers and managers and broadly educated leaders. No matter what degree a student earns, AFIT's primary goal is to graduate mission-ready men and women who can positively impact the Air Force.

As the scientific and technical capabilities of the Air Force continue to evolve, AFIT strives to maintain a corps of officers and other leaders who are prepared intellectually to harness these innovations and apply them so that our Air Force is prepared to conduct and sustain decisive operations. AFIT will continue to ensure that members of our force have the indepth knowledge in applied sciences, engineering, and defense technologies needed to uphold the high standards of the most powerful aerospace force in the world. As the Air Force continues to excel in the challenges of the 21st Century, AFIT stands poised to lead the way in meeting the educational needs of our Air Force and the Department of Defense.

NATIONAL AIR AND SPACE INTELLIGENCE CENTER

The National Air and Space Intelligence Center, a unit of Air Intelligence Agency, is the primary DOD producer of foreign air and space intelligence. It develops its products by analyzing all available data on foreign air and space weapon systems to determine performance characteristics, capabilities, and vulnerabilities. NASIC assessments and services play a key role in assuring that American forces can counter the foreign air and space threat and avoid strategic surprise.

NASIC provides national decision makers, operational commands, and the acquisition community the timely, integrated, and relevant intelligence products needed to establish national intelligence estimates, to support

55TH WING/OLWP DETACHMENT 1 E-4B NATIONAL AIRBORNE OPERATIONS CENTER

Detachment 1's parent wing is located at Offutt AFB, Neb., the largest wing in Air Combat Command. The 55th WG/OLWP was located at WPAFB November 15, 1994. One of few organizations with all enlisted personnel, Detachment 1 has a total of 12 Air Force personnel.

The unit supports the National Airborne Operations Center, known as NAOC, as a forward operating base, providing billeting, ground transportation, and ground support equipment for the E-4B aircraft. The E-4B is a militarized version of the Boeing 747-200, a modern, highly survivable, command, control, and communications platform with capabilities for directing U.S. forces, executing war orders, and coordinating actions taken by civil authorities. At least one fully manned E-4B is always on alert at one of many selected bases throughout the world—the aircraft itself will be seen only periodically at Wright-Patterson.

445TH AIRLIFT WING

The 445th Airlift Wing, U.S.Air Force Reserve, flies the C-5 Galaxy, one of the largest aircraft in the world.

The mission of the 445th AW is to attain and maintain operational readiness to provide strategic transport of personnel and equipment worldwide.

The unit consists of the 445th Operations Group, 445th Maintenance Group and 445th Mission Support Group. Thirteen squadrons and four flights fall under the three groups.

Approximately 2,100 reservists make up the 445th, including 480 who work full-time for the unit as air reserve technicians.

Upon mobilization, the 445th becomes part of Air Mobility Command, headquartered at Scott AFB, Ill.

47TH AIRLIFT FLIGHT

The 47th Airlift Flight, part of the 375th Airlift Wing, Air Mobility Command, operates a fleet of six C-21A aircraft for operational support airlift. The unit provides Air Force-directed wartime, contingency, peacetime priority airlift of seniorranking military and civilian officials and cargo with time, place and mission sensitive requirements.

DEFENSE TECHNICAL INFORMATION CENTER

DTIC, located in Area B, is the DOD clearinghouse for the collection and dissemination of scientific and technical information flowing in and out of the DOD research and development cycle. Much of this information is in the form of technical reports and summaries related to completed and ongoing research. Although limited public access is provided, the majority of the information is available via several databases that can be accessed by registered users only. DOD personnel, DOD contractors, potential contractors and other U.S. government agencies are eligible to become registered users.

Communities

BEAVERCREEK

A lovely suburban community of approximately 52 square miles, Beavercreek has gently rolling terrain, trees, forests, farmland, and modern housing. The average price for a home is $127,000 with a range in price from $50,000 to $650,000. These homes are on spacious lots with open area for future development. Beavercreek's population is more than 41,000 and growing rapidly. It has more than 1,000 businesses and some light industry. It is located in Greene County east of Dayton.

The City of Beavercreek is governed by a city charter, a city manager and seven council members. Beavercreek Township, which includes the city, is governed by three elected trustees. Both the city and the township have 24-hour professional police protection. Fire and emergency protection is provided by a volunteer department with a nucleus of fulltime professionals. Rescue and emergency squads are manned by certified paramedics equipped with the latest rescue vehicles and ambulances. The Fire Department is administered by the township and the Police Department is administered by the city.

Public facilities are available for most sports, such as little league, baseball, football, tennis, and soccer. There are 17 soccer fields, and four private swim clubs, two nearby county community pools, and commercial facilities for tennis, bowling, and skating. There are 13 parks in Beavercreek and many state facilities nearby. One of the most modern YMCA facilities in the Midwest opened in Beavercreek in 1987. The Mall at Fairfield Commons opened in 1993 with five anchor stores and 150 specialty shops. Fairfield Crossing, Beavercreek Towne Center, Rex Center, and the Shoppes of Beavercreek provide additional shopping opportunities for this growing community. Thirteen commercial banks and savings institutions have branches within the shopping areas. The local newspaper is the Beavercreek News-Current printed daily, and two other metropolitan newspapers delivered in the area.

BELLBROOK

The City of Bellbrook was settled in 1816 and was named for one of its founders, Stephen Bell, who helped plat part of what is now the "old village" area. The second part of the city's name undoubtedly refers to the many local waterways including Little Sugarcreek, Sugarcreek and the Little Miami River which enhance the local scenery.

The city first attained a population of over 5,000 when in 1970, Bellbrook annexed a large part of western Sugarcreek Township. This led to official city status in 1974 and the largest percentage increase in population in the state from 1970 to 1980 (308%). With the completion of a County sanitary sewer system and under the City's more comprehensive development controls, Bellbrook began growing again in 1979. Nearly 1500 new housing units have been built since that time and the 26% increase in population between the 1980 and 1990 census was the highest in the Miami Valley. As of the 2000 census, Bellbrook's current population is 7,009.

Bellbrook is proud of its wellplanned and desirable new neighborhoods which offer a range of housing from custom built single family homes on large lots to luxury apartment and condominium units. The City's focus on encouraging quality development resulted in the largest appreciation in home values in the state during the 10 years from 1978 to 1988-a 115% increase in valuation. Also noteworthy has been the construction of new housing developments in the downtown area which help support the many new restaurants and specialty shops in the old village business district.

Bellbrook is unique in Ohio because out of over 250 cities in the state, it is one of approximately five (5) cities which do not levy a local income tax; Bellbrook is one of even fewer full service cities without such a tax. Bellbrook also ranks near the bottom in a survey on local government costs. Yet in spite of the low tax burden, the services provided by Bellbrook's Fire, Police and Service Departments rank among the best of any municipality in southwest Ohio, regardless of size.

Bellbrook's Fire Department provides some of the best small city fire and paramedic services in the state using a combination of full time, part time and volunteer firefighter/paramedics with round-the-clock staffing working 24/48 schedules. With the acquisition of a new state of the art fire engine in 2003 combined with the existing fleet of fire fighting apparatus and medics, the Bellbrook

Fire Department will undoubtedly maintain it's reputation as one of the best small city departments in the state and help improve upon the excellent citywide Class 3 ISO rating.

The Police Department helps keep Bellbrook's crime rate at the lowest level in the area through a combination of comprehensive neighborhood patrol, neighborhood and business watch programs and a wide range of public education programs including D.A.R.E., The Citizen's Police Academy and the very successful National Night Out Against Crime, held in five neighborhoods this past August. The Police Department is staffed by very qualified and experienced personnel, well-trained on a wide range of topics, including homeland security issues.

The Service Department is responsible for all of the City's public works including the operation of the 9,200 customer water system which serves all of Bellbrook and portions of Sugarcreek Township and includes the former Greene County system which was purchased by Bellbrook in 1981. The water system operates on automated controls and is comprised of four elevated storage tanks which provide high quality drinking water to City and township residents. The Service Department also provides some of the best snow removal services in the area and administers an annual street maintenance program.

Bellbrook also owns the Bellbrook Historic Museum, Winter's Library and over thirty (30) parcels of parkland and open space throughout the community

CEDARVILLE

The village of Cedarville is conveniently located between Columbus, Dayton, and Cincinnati. It is within 30 minutes of the nation's finest antique shops, six major universities, premier bikeways, and numerous historic attractions. The village settlement was originally called Newport's Mill, then Hanna's Store, then the Burgh. The first official name was Milford, however, because of confusion with another Milford (near Cincinnati), the village at last adopted the name Cedarville to reflect its thenabundance of cedar trees.

The Cedarville Opera House, center of community life in the late 19th century, was originally constructed in 1886, only to be destroyed by fire within the year. The current structure was finished in 1888. It is a 1/3 scale replication of the Royal Albert Hall in London, England. In 1984 the Cedarville Opera House was placed on the National Register of Historic Places. Each year, a full array of programs including music, theater, and literary recitals are held for the enjoyment of the public.

One of the annual highlights in the village is the CedarFest celebration, held each Labor Day weekend. The festival is held in memory of Cedarville native James H. Kyle, who, as a member of the United States Senate, helped establish Labor Day as a national holiday.

COMMUNITIES

CENTERVILLE AND WASHINGTON TOWNSHIP

Centerville, founded in 1796, is one of the oldest communities in Ohio. The heart of the city has been designated as an architectural preservation district to retain and maintain its historic heritage. From its early beginning as a small cross road and stagecoach-stop farming community, Centerville is now a high quality, modern residential community.

Centerville is located in Washington Township in the southern half of Montgomery County, about six miles south of Dayton. Although the city and township are separate political entities, they are often accepted as a single residential community and together they cover nearly 32 square miles. The 2000 census reported a combined Centerville and Washington Township population of 52,991.

An extensive variety of housing is available, ranging from apartments and condominiums to luxury housing. The art of living is fine and competitively affordable with houses ranging in price from $150,000 to over $1,000,000.

The hustle and bustle of business activity exists side-by-side with quiet, tree-lined streets, community and neighborhood parks, plus nature areas and swim clubs, attractions that complement available tennis and basketball courts, as well as baseball, football and soccer fields. The 50,000 square foot Washington Township Recreation Center provides opportunities for both active and passive recreation, possessing a natatorium with 2 indoor swimming pools. Centerville is also home to the nationally-recognized Golf Club at Yankee Trace, a 27-hole championship facility with a country club atmosphere.

Five major shopping centers and more than 500 retail outlets with an even mix of upscale boutiques and national retailers are available to residents. There are churches of various denominations, many fine restaurants and theaters, plus the charm and down-to-earth friendliness that belongs to everybody's hometown.

The Washington Centerville Public Library has two convenient branches that support lifelong learning and further diversity in the community. Our library is the 9th busiest library in the state of Ohio offering the 22nd largest collection in the state.

COMMUNITIES

The Centerville City Schools are well recognized for having an outstanding program for the City's students. The Centerville City Schools have earned the "Excellent" rating from Ohio's Local Report Card each year; only 17 of the 612 Ohio school districts can proudly claim this. With over 8,000 enrolled students, the Centerville City School District consists of one high school, three middle schools, six elementary schools, and one kindergarten village. Plans are underway for a second K-1 building and renovations to current buildings. The District also offers an Alternative High School and Pre-School. The District is known for its academic program, special services. and extra-curricular offerings in math, science, reading, arts, drama, music, volunteer opportunities and athletics. DAYTON

Dayton has long been known to the world for the history-impacting innovations born here, from Wilbur and Orville Wright's flying machines, to Charles Kettering's automobile self-starter, to the poems of Paul Laurence Dunbar and the witty writings of Erma Bombeck.

Today, Dayton's cooperative spirit is still alive in the nearly one million Greater Dayton residents who live, work and play in the city. From vibrant downtown Dayton to its charming, unique neighborhoods, citizens are working together to make the city a friendly, safe and progressive place to call home.

Hard work has paid off. Dayton can boast of its award-winning, internationally recognized arts programs, including the Dayton Opera, the Dayton Philharmonic Orchestra, the Victoria Theatre, the Schuster Performing Arts Center, the Dayton Ballet and the Dayton Contemporary Dance Theatre. Several museums are located in Dayton as well, including the Dayton Art Institute, Carillon Park, the High Street Gallery, the Dayton Visual Arts Center, the Boonshoft Museum of Discovery and SunWatch Village.

Residents, business and government work hand-in-hand in the city's 65 neighborhoods to create affordable, attractive housing. Dayton's neighborhood system is a strong one, guided by a long-established network of Priority Boards, neighborhood associations and watch groups. Whether you want a beautiful vintage home in one of Dayton's historic districts, a modern home in a new development, a starter home on a quaint tree-lined street or a downtown condominium or loft apartment, Dayton offers a neighborhood for virtually every taste and price range. In addition, the neighborhood festivals, clean-up projects, picnics and special events make the areas much more than places to live, but friendly places to call home. Neighbors can also boast of a unique magnet-school program in its public school system and the academic excellence of the University of Dayton, the largest private university in Ohio and one of the 10-largest Catholic universities in the nation. In addition, Sinclair Community College is a long-standing downtown anchor.

Those who work, live and play here have joined forces to revitalize downtown Dayton. Several recent projects add to the growth and vitality of downtown, including the addition of a Minor League baseball team and stadium (the Dayton Dragons), the new Schuster Performing Arts Center, and the beautiful RiverScape park along the Great Miami River.

At the heart of the city is the Courthouse Square, a popular gathering spot for downtown workers, shoppers and visitors. Throughout the week food vendors, lunchers and shoppers fill the square to soak in the sun, meet with friends and enjoy the noontime entertainment often taking place. The spot also boasts various holiday celebrations and many of the city's special events. For evening entertainment, dine at one of over 50 restaurants or enjoy live rock, soul, blues, jazz, rap and folk music or outrageous comedy at one of the many bars and clubs which showcase both local and national groups.

ENGLEWOOD

There's so much about Englewood that appeals to its 13,500 residents: beautiful homes to suit every budget; an abundance of parks and recreational opportunities; easy access to major interstates and an international airport; and an outstanding education system in the Northmont School district, for starters. The city continues to grow with new families, new businesses, and new parks, while maintaining its reputation as the Miami Valley's "Open-Space Community."

Carefully developed in 6.2 square miles, Englewood has retained its small-town atmosphere, especially in its recently renovated downtown area while offering the modern amenities of shopping centers, grocery stores, banks, and other numerous businesses. The city is located seven miles north of Dayton along the scenic Stillwater River.

Englewood is one of the most desirable places to build a home in the Miami Valley: data compiled by the Home Builders Association of Dayton and the Miami Valley shows that Englewood saw a 86 percent increase in building permits issued over the past year. Englewood's new and expanding residential developments include Wedgewood, Millwood, Carriage Trail, Englewood Meadows, Timber Ridge, North-creek, and Windpointe. There are also many beautiful, established neighborhoods bedecked with full, mature trees, wide sidewalks, and smiling faces who quickly become friends. Smart Moves, a computer software product that ranks over 10,000 communities nationwide, recently named Englewood best overall community in the Dayton-Springfield metro area. The city maintains nine parks, each offering a variety of recreational amenities, including playgrounds and play equipment, baseball and soccer fields, tennis and volleyball courts, bike paths, and walking trails. Englewood's Centennial Park recently added a water sculpture feature-the first of its kind in the state of Ohio-for children to splash around in. A park with fishing lakes is currently under development. The City is also home to Englewood MetroPark, a 2,000-acre nature reserve offering hiking trails, fishing, and horseback riding. Adjacent to Englewood is the Aullwood Audubon Center, a wildlife conservation area operated by the National Audubon Society.

Englewood's Earl Heck Community Center is a popular gathering spot for indoor activities, such as aerobics, arts and crafts, senior citizens' activities, and much more. Englewood also coordinates a variety of community events, including an annual Easter Egg Hunt, Fine Art Festival, Sister City Club with Billerbeck, Germany, and holiday gatherings.

Englewood is located on Interstate 70 near Interstate 75, only four miles west of Dayton International Airport. The city is serviced by RTA, the Miami Valley's bus provider.

Englewood youth receive a quality education in the Northmont City Schools district. Known throughout the Miami Valley for its outstanding curriculum and extracurricular activities, Northmont is accredited by the Ohio Department of Education. Students consistently score above the state and national averages on American College Tests, Scholastic Aptitude Tests, and the Ohio Survey Test of academic ability and achievement. There are seven elementary schools, a middle school, and a senior high school serving over 7,000 students in the district.

Englewood is also home to the Miami Valley Career Technology Center, a vast educational complex on 180 acres, offering high school and adult vocational, technical, and academic courses in more than 50 skill-development programs.

Englewood is less than 30 minutes from some of the finest colleges and universities in Ohio, including the University of Dayton, Wright State University, and Sinclair Community College.

The city operates under a council/manager form of government adopted by charter in 1970. Highly skilled and trained professionals provide fire and police protection 24 hours a day. Englewood's Police Department is nationally accredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies—the only police department in the Northmont community to earn this distinction. The city's fire and rescue department is a member of the Miami Valley Fire and EMS Alliance and part of an Automatic Mutual Aid Response.

Excellent healthcare is available in Englewood at Samaritan North Health Center, an outpatient medical facility. Northwest Medical Center also serves people on an outpatient basis. Englewood is within 15 to 30 minutes of major hospitals. Over 75 doctors and dentists have offices in Englewood.

FAIRBORN (THE "WRIGHT" LOCATION)

On January 1, 1950 when the villages of Fairfield and Osborn combined for their mutual benefit, the City of Fairborn was chartered establishing a tradition of growth and excellence. The willingness to identify positive approaches and work as a team is what distinguishes Fairborn from other communities. While teamwork is not a new concept, the concept of a shared community vision combining the efforts of the city of Fairborn, the Fairborn City Schools, Fairborn Area Chamber of Commerce, Bath Township, Greene County local businesses and citizens to establish direction for the Fairborn area is an innovative approach developing a lasting focus for our community.

Our ability to work together toward collective goals will continue to establish Fairborn as a driving force in the Miami Valley region.

NEW CARLISLE

Established in 1810, New Carlisle is positioned at the crossroads of State Route 235, which runs south to Xenia and north to Bellefontaine, and State Route 571, which transverses west towards Greenville. U.S. 40, scenic Old National Trail, is only two miles south, which will take the history buff from Baltimore to Los Angeles. Within five minutes of Interstate 70 and 675, and about eight miles from Interstate 75, we are poised for growth along the I-70 corridor.

We are surrounded by Honey Creek. A fertile and ancient river bottom, the area surrounding New Carlisle has been for many years an agricultural focused town and has been referred to as a "bedroom community." While we are a small "growing" community that embraces a slower pace, we are progressive and welcome new members to our community. There are currently three new housing developments starting in our City, offering everything from senior citizen housing to $120,000 to $250,000 family homes.

We are served by many denominations of churches, a YMCA just south of town, 100 acres of parkland, baseball diamonds, a golf course and a city pool. Just to the west across the county line is beautiful spring fed Silver Lake Beach, where there are cabins, camping, picnicking and water sports to enjoy. Our New Carlisle Knights are the current Roy Hobbs Baseball League Grand Champions.

New Carlisle children attend Tecumseh Local Schools. New Carlisle Airport, home of the "Flying Angels" is just one-half mile east on 571. Astronaut Virgil "Gus" Grissom was a member of the "Flying Angels" when he was stationed at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in the 1950s. New Carlisle hosts the Heritage of Flight Festival the first weekend of October, which includes the Parade of Planes, showcasing vintage planes. There are several service clubs such as the American Legion Post 286, a 500+ member organization with a very active Women's Legion Auxiliary, Sertoma, Lions, Rotary, Chautauqua, Eagles, Optimist, Bethel Churches United, preservation and business organizations like the Masonic Temple F&AM, the Community Choir, Historical Society and the New Carlisle Area Chamber of Commerce.

OAKWOOD

In 1913, Oakwood was primarily farmland situated on a hill directly south of Dayton. That year a disastrous flood inundated downtown Dayton and a new kind of advertising began to appear. It reminded potential landowners that Oakwood's property was "275 feet" higher than the intersection at Third and Main Streets in Dayton. Thus began the period of biggest growth in Oakwood's history.

By 1930, Oakwood had 6,000 people. Numbered among its inhabitants was Orville Wright, co-inventor of the heavier-than-air flying machine. His stately home known as Hawthorn Hill still occupies the corner of Harman and Park Avenues.

Since Oakwood is now entirely surrounded by the cities of Dayton and Kettering, the city has reached its maximum size of almost three square miles. With 98 percent of the city in residential use, the population of 9,000 persons has remained relatively constant in the last 20 years. Most Oakwood housing is available in the $95,000 to $275,000 range. Estate homes can range up to $5 million in cost. A variety of rentals are available including apartment buildings, converted duplexes in older homes, conventional duplexes, and single-family homes.

Outdoor attractions such as Smith Gardens, Elizabeth Gardens, Loy Gardens, Houk Stream, community parks and tennis courts provide citizens with a wide range of activities.

PIQUA

Legend has it that an ancient Indian tribe gave Piqua its unique name after the tribe had burned an enemy warrior in a ritual ceremony. The warrior rose from the ashes of his body, and the amazed Indians exclaimed, "Otahhewagh-pw-qua," translated as, "He is risen from the ashes."

The city of Piqua is located in West Central Ohio, 18 minutes north of the Dayton International Airport. Piqua, located in Miami County, has a population in excess of 22,000. North-south Interstate 75 bisects the community and east-west Interstate 70 is just 20 miles to the south. East-west U.S. Route 36 runs through the city.

The Miami-Erie Canal is an important part of Piqua's history. The canal was opened to Piqua in 1837, and was the super-highway of its time. Today many parts of the original canal are preserved. Visitors to the Piqua Historical Area, located at 9845 North Hardin Road, can see exhibits of artifacts from Ohio's canal era in the Historic Indian and Canal Museum. Visitors can also take a scenic ride along a restored mile-long section of the Miami and Erie Canal on the General Harrison, a replica of a muledrawn canal boat. The restored home of John Johnston-Indian agent, canal commissioner, farmer and statesman- can also be toured along with several of the outbuildings. Over Labor Day weekend the Piqua Historical area hosts the Piqua Heritage Festival. For more information on the festival go to: piquaheritagefestival.com.

Piqua is small enough that bank tellers and grocery cashiers can greet their customers by name and big enough to offer an exciting lifestyle while still holding on to the sense of community and belonging. Ornate Victorian manors, contemporary and traditional homes, efficiency apartments, and luxury condominiums are just some of the housing choices available in Piqua. Country living does not mean a long drive to downtown Piqua. A ten-minute drive, in any direction from downtown Piqua, will bring one to a rambling farmhouse or a modern ranch house.

SPRING VALLEY

Nestled in the hills of southern Greene County is Spring Valley, founded in 1850. This tree-lined village is the home of the Potato Festival, the first full weekend of October. In 1995 the ribbon was cut on the Little Miami Scenic Trail, which crosses its Main Street and is now the site for biking, jogging, rollerblading, horseback riding, and hiking. Nature abounds in beauty and preserved wetlands as the Little Miami River winds its way through farm fields and the valley. Other recreational facilities surround the village including Walton Park, Constitution Park, Spring Valley Frontier campground, Spring Valley Wildlife Area and a bustling canoe livery.

Spring Valley has many dedicated service organizations, which include the Spring Valley Area Chamber of Commerce, Spring Valley ACTS, Spring Valley Senior Center, Spring Valley Lions, Spring Valley Lioness, Masonic Lodge, Eastern Star, and Spring Valley Community Library.

Several projects are underway to restore historic landmarks. The town hall, built in 1888, is being renovated for activity in arts and entertainment, with the newly appointed Spring Valley Park District active in this endeavor. The first cement house in Ohio, formerly the George Barrett Home, will become the town museum and its extensive renovation is underway.

SPRINGBORO

In 1815, Jonathan Wright, a Quaker, founded and platted the village of

"Springborough," naming it for the numerous underground springs found in the area.

Springboro's involvement with the Underground Railroad followed naturally from the Quakers' abhorrence of slavery. Even though aiding escaped slaves on their way to freedom in Canada was against the law, Springboro's residents, both Quaker and non-Quaker, answered to conscience. Through the years an oral history has been passed down and evidence of hiding places and tunnels has been uncovered. Most of the original Quaker buildings still stand on Springboro's South Main Street (SR 741), which has been recognized on the National Register of Historic Places. Today they are occupied by quaint shops, a charming restaurant, and families who choose to live in the Historic District.

A self-guided walking tour brochure takes you on a "walk into history." You may also schedule a group tour with a costumed reenactor.

Note: Many South Main Street businesses are closed on Mondays.

A new consolidated hospital will be located in the downtown area by 2010, as well as support industries for the hospital campus and loft homes. Also located downtown is a 120-room upscale hotel, restaurant and banquet center, a heritage museum, a family YMCA, and a performing arts center. The area's rich heritage has been beautifully preserved throughout it's architectural and historic treasures. Home to what has been hailed as one of Frank Lloyd Wright's "Top 20 Designs", the Westcott House captures an era of life and prosperity.

Arts and culture are in full bloom throughout the year. Take the showcase events of the Springfield Arts Council and their Summer Arts Festival. Thousands of people enjoy this free summer performance showcase. From dance to music (like Springfield's own Grammy-award winner John Legend), audiences are captivated all summer long at this free event. But the shows go on all season long with the Springfield Symphony, Clark State Performing Arts Center series and at the Springfield Museum of Art. Countless other performances take place at venues ranging from the historic State Theatre to Wittenberg University. Fairs, festivals and antiquing are favorite past times of visitors and locals alike. Throughout the surrounding Clark County area are several of the region's largest antique malls, and smaller shops (over 20 in all) are located throughout the area. The Upper Valley Mall is located at the northwest edge of the city. Close by is a retail hub at Bechtle Avenue, with diverse shopping and dining options. Strip malls, antique malls, and unique shopping can be found throughout the county. Since Springfield is the home of 4-H, it's no wonder that the many county fairs and local festivals are perennial family favorites.

If you have a taste for fun and food, Spring-field is sure to satisfy your appetite. We recom-mend a trip to Young's Jersey Dairy, one of the largest tourist attractions in the State of Ohio. This unique destination offers home-made ice cream, puttputt courses, batting cages, two restaurants and a petting zoo. Young kids, and those young at heart, just love to visit Young's. In the heart of downtown Springfield is the creative fare of the region's premier dining spot, Mela Urban Bistro. Choose from the unique menu, irresistible desserts, ample wine list and ever-relaxing lounge.

On the more relaxed side, there are numerous casual dining stops all around.

There's more in store in Springfield. Over the next year, two new major attractions will be created. The Ice Arena will offer skating and ice sports. To cool off during the summer months, families will enjoy the refreshing new outdoor pool. These additions will join Springfield's skateboard park, Carleton David-son Stadium. The stadium includes the Clark County Baseball Hall of Fame which houses tributes to 21 major league baseball players from Clark County. There are 14 newly built elementary and middle schools throughout the city, with 29 county elementary, middle and high schools. A combined City High school is being built.

We invite you to feel right at home in Springfield. Literally. From the unique architecture of the South Fountain Historic District and lovely tree-lined streets of Fountain Avenue, to the estate-style homes of Sean's Woods and Derby Glen, you'll find Springfield as inviting a place to live as it is to visit.

TIPP CITY

A small town where community pride and caring are still in fashion.

In 1840, John Clark planted the seed that would develop into Tippecanoe City. Situated on the Miami-Erie canal at what is now State Route 571, the town was established to take advantage of the traffic on the canal. Clark named the fledgling city "Tippecanoe" to express his admiration for William Henry Harrison whose campaign slogan was "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too."

Preserving its rich architectural legacy is important to the residents of Tipp City. The 89 buildings on the National Register of Historic Places greatly contribute to the quaint charm of the community. The city's historic downtown area offers a variety of retail and service options from antiques and memorabilia, to specialty stores. It offers a truly unique shopping experience.

Proximity to major transportation routes sparked the birth of Tipp City and continues to be the catalyst for the community's growing popularity. Located between two Interstate 75 interchanges (exits 68 and 69), 17 miles north of Dayton and just minutes from the Dayton International Airport, Tipp City offers easy access plus an excellent quality of life.

Included in a true quality lifestyle are varied recreational facilities. The city park system has more than 300 acres of developed park lands. This includes two municipal parks, a pool (a family aquatic center is being designed), canoe livery, nature area and eleven neighborhood parks.

Several golf courses and other recreational amenities are just minutes away.

Youngsters, oldsters and everyone in between are kept as active as they choose with a host of clubs and organizations in which to become involved. Tipp-Monroe Community Services provides community education, recreation, and cultural opportunities for all ages. In the fall, "Mum's the word" as the entire town celebrates the chrysanthemum flower during the annual Mum Festival.

"Outstanding" is the word for Tipp City's schools. Considered to be one of the best school systems in the region, Tipp students consistently score well above average on standardized tests. The new 24 million dollar Tippecanoe High School will open in April of 2004 at the northwest corner of Tipp-Cowlesville and Kessler-Cowlesville Roads.

Home: nurturing environment; safety; security. Tipp City has many ways to make a home; from houses steeped in history to cozy apartments and convenient condominiums to executive level showcases in country settings.

VANDALIA

COMMUNITIES

In 1838 a group of westward-bound settlers ran into bad weather and low-supplies near what is now the intersection of Dixie Highway and National Road in the center of Vandalia. Even then they recognized the "Crossroads of America" and decided to build their homes there. The title remains very pertinent because the junction of Interstate 75 and Interstate 70 are located within the Vandalia corporation line.

The James M. Cox Dayton International Airport, located in Vandalia, serves the entire Dayton area with scheduled flights by eight airlines. The market accessibility and transportation facilities, including railroads, make Vandalia a favorable location for business. Twelve corporations have their headquarters in Vandalia, along with such industries as auto accessories, powered woodworking tools, electronics, tool and die, computer and television parts, construction products, food processors and suppliers, and industries working in research with the Navy and Air Force.

Vandalia is the worldwide headquarters for the Amateur Trapshooting Association and the Trapshooting Hall of Fame. Formerly the home of the Grand American Trapshoot, the Hall of Fame celebrates the sport's legends and chronicles Vandalia's long and storied history with trapshooting.

Vandalia's Sister Cities Club conducts a three-day Oktoberfest with authentic German music, food, drinks and crafts the weekend following Labor Day. This year the event will be held at the Exposition Center at Dayton International Airport.

Housing ranges from small homes, apartments and condominiums to elaborate, single-family dwellings.

Vandalia is served by the Regional Transit Authority and is only 10 miles from Dayton.

Vandalia has 16 city parks, a municipal swimming pool and tennis courts. The Vandalia Recreation Center is a state-of-the-art facility that offers an indoor water park, a fitness center with advanced cardio training machinery and a four-story climbing wall. Cassel Hills Golf Course has been rated as one of the 100 "Must Play" golf courses in the State of Ohio by Golf Styles Magazine. The course is situated within the Taylorsville Reserve, offering golfers challenging play and breathtaking scenery. The incorporated area of the city is more than eight square miles with a population of 15,000.

The Vandalia-Butler School District offers three elementary schools, two middle schools, and one senior high school. The district is one of only five districts within Montgomery County to receive an "Excellent" rating from the State Board of Education. Vandalia also has one Catholic elementary school. Sixteen churches are available to its residences.

For details, contact the Vandalia Chamber of Commerce, 76 Fordway Drive, P.O. Box 224, Vandalia, OH 45377-0224, or call 898-5351.

WAYNESVILLE

Located midway between Interstate 71 and Interstate 75, at the intersection of U.S. 42 and State Route 73, this aggressive town of 2,400 is 35 minutes southeast of Dayton and less than an hour northeast of Cincinnati.

Waynesville, nestled on a hillside overlooking the Little Miami River, is older than the State of Ohio. Its business district is unique. Many of the buildings date back to the early 1800s and several have been converted into antique and/or specialty shops. Casually strolling the length of Main Street one quickly understands why Waynesville is known as the "Antiques Capital of the Midwest." 35 individual antique shops plus 35 specialty shops, art galleries and restaurants are within a five-block area.

With its excellent school system, churches of many denominations, a most progressive public library, convenient shopping area, and outstanding police and fire departments, the Waynesville area is an ideal place to locate a home or business. It also offers medical and dental care, and has connections to all hospitals in the surrounding metropolitan area. More than a dozen colleges and universities are within a 50-mile radius.

Few communities are blessed with such a diversity of recreational opportunities. Caesar Creek State Park offers boating, camping, canoeing, fishing, horseback riding, hiking, hunting and swimming. Also, flying, gliding, golf, skiing and tennis are to be found within fifteen minutes from downtown. New to the area is the Little Miami Scenic Trail, winding along the river from Corwin to Xenia as the southern section for a total of 11 miles.

Waynesville also is known as the home of the nationally-famous Ohio Sauerkraut Festival, held the second full weekend in October, and the Christmas in the Village Celebration, held one weekend in December.

WEST CARROLLTON

Located south of Dayton along Interstate 75, West Carrollton is a "hometown" community of 14,000. A wide variety of housing styles is available in the city including single-family homes, apartments, and single-family homes, apartments, and condominiums. The city has seven shopping areas within its boundaries, and the Dayton Mall is only five minutes from most homes. In addition, the city offers easy access to restaurants, specialty shops, grocery stores, professional and medical offices, post office, and library.

The city has one of the lowest combined water and sewer rates in the Miami Valley region. The city's income tax rate is 2 percent, and it has one of the lowest effective real estate property tax rates in Montgomery County.

The city has an aggressive capital improvements program that includes street construction, park development, acquisition of fire apparatus and other public improvements. The city's parks and recreation department maintains nine parks and offers numerous exercise and recreation programs for children and adults. The new West Carrollton YMCA supports the family-friendly community.

There are thirteen churches in the immediate area and numerous community organizations.

The West Carrollton School District includes the city of West Carrollton and a portion of the city of Moraine and Miami Township. The district operates a senior high school, a middle school, four elementary schools, and the Shade Early Childhood Center. West Carrollton School District also participates as a member in the Miami Valley Career Technology Center (MVCTC).

YELLOW SPRINGS

Yellow Springs is a great place to visit or a fine place to live-whichever you prefer. It is a small town which does not fit easily into standard categories—it is not urban, suburban, or rural. Technically a village, with a population of 4,000, it has retained small town charm yet prides itself on a mix of economic, cultural, and racial backgrounds.

Situated in the northern section of Greene County, 18 miles east of Dayton, Yellow Springs is an easy commute to Wright-Patterson via I-675 or area roads. Founded in the early 1800s, the town quickly

Natural areas extending from the town include the 1,000-acre Glen Helen nature preserve, 750 acre John Bryan State Park, and 270 acre Clifton Gorge State Nature Preserve. (Or) More than 2000 acres of nature preserves and State parks including Glen Helen Nature preserve, John Bryan State Park, and Clifton Gorge .
